Rose Árido 2009

A dry rosé made entirely from dry-grown bush-vine McLaren Vale Grenache, or garnacha, as it's known in it's homeland. Whatever you call it, grenache is perfectly suited to warm, arid Australian winegrowing regions. The grapes for Rosé Árido were hand-harvested, crushed and left on skins for 36 hours to achieve the wine's appealing colour and to enhance the flavour and texture. There are fruit characters of raspberry, violet, Turkish delight, and the finish is crisp and dry.
